

Tornado Drill

Soon we will have a tornado drill at school. We are not having a real tornado! We are just having a drill. That means that we are going to practice what we would do if we have a real tornado someday at school.

At the right time, our principal will make an announcement that we should get into our positions.

We will then go into our special spot and crouch down and cover our heads. We do not need to be afraid because this is not a real tornado but we need to be quiet.

When our principal says that we are finished we can get up and go back to our classroom. Then we can go back to work. I think that it might feel a little scary to practice for a tornado drill but I know that my teachers will always keep me safe.
